Erasmus - Slovakia

The first day has already passed. Now the second day in Slovakia begins. Early in the morning around 7:30 am we drove to our first destination of the day. We went to the national nature monument of the Demänovské Caves on the northern side of the Low Tatras Mts., which is the longest cave system in Slovakia. It rained all day and it was cold but it was a great experience to visit the caves.

After that we went to Poprad. We had the opportunity to eat and store there for two hours. It was a nice idea after the rainy hike.

In addition we were in The High Tatras- Štrbské pleso- sports centre. Štrbské Pleso lies in the western part of the High Tatras and is one of the High Tatras districts. It enjoys a great location and is suitable as the starting point for hiking tours as well as trips to other parts of the High Tatras and the surrounding area. We went for a walk and visited the Ski Jump area. It was amazing.

But the highlight of the day for us was the last destination. We went to Vysoké Tatry. There was a gallery of illusion art. It's called Tricklandia. These works of art depict items that appear to exist, but which are only two-dimensional drawings. It's a game between artist and visitor. It was really very interesting and entertaining.
